The doctrine is clearly presented and well applied to the reader and appears at appropriate points in the text. It is very important that our children hear such stories of inspiring Faith and great people like Catherine Mackenzie make them accessible to the very young. (Kathy Chidress, Grace Magazine,)

Catherine MacKenzie has written several biographies for young teens in the Trailblazers series as well as other titles for younger children. She lives in Scotland and has several nieces and nephews - a perfect practice audience!

I help kids at school with their reading. Some just don't like to read, and some have a lot of trouble. This book fascinated some girls in first grade, and they have read it many times. It is the true story of Corrie ten Boom, and is very age appropriate - no gore, just a great story of faith during hard times.

Great title and I liked how the author included the story about the secret message under the stamp! I also like how the author highlighted Corrie's father and her sister as they are very important in her faith. Minus one star because Corrie was much older than what was portrayed in the book when she went to Ravensbruck.

Perfect age bracket and story.

A very reachable story of an amazing life. My 6 yr old daughter loves to read them.

Excellent for early elementary. I'm using it in my homeschool for my first grader alongside YWAMS Heroes for Young Readers Book about Corrie Ten Boom for my fourth grader.

Great bio for young children about God's people

Nicely illustrated shorter child's version

I bought this to read to my preschool class - we were studying Missions and who a missionary is and what they do. This book did a great job fulfilling my goal for that teaching time.
