Alison Gilligan grew up in New England before moving to New York City for college, work, and life (not necessarily in that order). After graduating from NYU she worked in an art auction house and advertising agency before relocating to the Pacific NW. There she helped combat international piracy for a large software company before leaving to focus on raising a family and serving on nonprofit boards dedicated to promoting literacy and combating homelessness. She currently lives with her family in Florence, Italy, where she worships at the shrines of Brunelleschi, Bronzino, and mozzarella di bufala. She continues her volunteer work with a nonprofit dedicated to restoring Florence's art treasures. Ms. Gilligan and her family spend their summers on San Juan Island, Washington.

Bought two of these books for my son, as I recall reading the choose your own adventure books when I was younger. He truly enjoys the options and often goes back to a specific part of the book and chooses the other route, just to see how it ends.

i chose that rating because i just like choose your own adventures books on the kindle the best and i do not have to worry about losing my place in the book

This Kindle book needs some work. You can only see parts of some of the full screen pictures. If you tap on the Kindle to try to see the pictures you can sometimes get it to show the picture but often it messes up with the links to your choices.
