If you are seeking a calendar with interesting and challenging daily games, look elsewhere. The puzzles in this calendar are very uneven in quality and mostly trivial. In the first 6 months of the year there have been, at most, 15 interesting puzzles that required some thought. Many of the puzzles are simple memory exercises that really should be timed. Any puzzles labeled easy or medium are utterly trivial -- even some of the so called hard ones barely require any pause (For example, memorize a list of 6 seemingly random letters now write them down in alphabetical order). There are roughly a dozen puzzle types that are repeated over and over. There is little novelty. The one interesting puzzle type is called split words where you are challenged to reconstruct 20 words in a category from small fragments. Other than that, unless you need to work on your memory these puzzles are not for you.

Try to keep up with the games or catch up with it as I watch TV. Repeat games on the various days gives you an idea as to what is required to complete the game, easy to hard.

We bought this as a Christmas present for my oldest son. He's really into strategy games and this was right up his alley (he's 11). Some of them get pretty challenging and that's great.

Small variety of games, several of which I do not enjoy (i.e. sort the numbers in ascending/descending order "as quickly as possible" or Match the animal to its favorite food). It's going to be a loooong year.

I buy this calendar annually for my mom who loves doing a puzzle a day! Plus I feel as though I'm helping her keep her mind sharp as he gets older.

Gave this as a Christmas gift... Recipient couldn't put it down to open his other gifts. It's a wonderful gift

Most of the daily games are not hard at all, even the ones labeled "Hard". Still fun to figure them out even if it only takes a minute or two.

Bought as a gift, but they loved it.
