Jack Hungelmann has more than 2,000 hours of insurance education and has been in private practice for more than 30 years. He is the proprietor of an insurance agency, and he teaches risk management and insurance courses through continuing education programs in Ohio and Minnesota.

I purchased this book prior to taking the Property and Casualty state test. I read this book cover to cover and then began studying the offered material for the exams and I had a much better understanding than if I would have jumped right into studying. This book does exactly what it says it does...it dumbs down insurance to a point that anyone can understand and draw their own decisions and conclusions on their own coverage. Whether you want to be an agent or just learn a little more about insurance in general, this is a great resource.

extremely informative, I am studying for my Property and Casualty exam here in Phoenix and decided to get the very basics from this book 1st and then move into an Arizona specific text with practice exams. This manual was actually designed extremely well, good relevant, practical information for the beginner and every day American. I am glad I took the time to read it and fill out my basic knowledge and understanding of insurance.

Good Shipment

very useful book.

I only read the portion dealing with Health Insurance as my family was in the market for a new policy. It did a good job of describing the general principles so that I could speak more intelligently with our insurance agent, but because the copyright is 2009, it is obviously missing details on the Affordable Care Act (aka Obamacare). I have not yet read the other sections, so I cannot comment on those.

It explains insurance the way anyone could understand.

The Dummies books are great and this one should be added to the list. Good info to make informed decisions without a sales slant or bias.

Everyone with any assets should read this.
