Sets the standard for travel guides. -- Sunday Times [London]

Formerly Head of the Department of Classical Archaeology at Edinburgh University and Assistant Director of the British School at Athens, Robin Barber now spends much of his time travelling in Greece. His home is in Edinburgh. --This text refers to an out of print or unavailable edition of this title.

I just returned from spending a week in Athens and used this guide the entire time. It is a fantastic personal guide for the whole city, taking you to all the ancient sites as well as the more different places. The book explains the history of the sites, and then tells you almost stone-for-stone what you are looking at for each site. There are wonderful parts of Athens I would have missed had I not had this book with me. It also goes through places outside Athens, such as the sites at Sounion and Eleusis. If you're interested in ancient history (and especially archaeological sites), then you can't do better than to take this guide with you to Athens.
